The Facts

Complex litigations often contain information which can be technical, scientific and often foreign to most members of the jury panel. – Facts that can be hard to understand.

We play a critical role in developing visual tools which will effectively communicate complex evidence and concepts into a concise and comprehensible illustration.

"Maintaining the juror's minds attentive to the facts by using simple to-the-point info-visuals will make the difference between winning or losing a case."

Timelines

Our designers pay meticulous attention to the storyline at hand in order to develop the most strategically effective visual-break-down to portray the chain of events in litigation.

We focus on creating timelines designed to reinforce the presenter's case as the chain of events are being narrated.

Color Schematics

Court Graphix implements the combination of specific color schemes to strategically intensify the psychological impact to persuade the jury. Creating a consistent design template is crucial to familiarize the jury with the litigation team to increase credibility.
